Air Force Recruiting Officer will be proceeding
by private car.

(b) On the satisfactory completion of this course of service training the recruit will be remustered to Group II and may be posted to an Air Force unit for about 3 months to consolidate instruction received. If so posted he will receive pay according to the classification for which he qualifies at the final trade test—Aircraftsman 2nd class Rs. 40, Aircraftsman 1st class Rs. 55, Leading Aircraftsman Rs. 70 p. m.

(c) At the conclusion of this period—

- (i) If a suitable vacancy exists he will remain embodied in the Indian Air Force Volunteer Reserve for the duration of the war at the above rates of pay, which will be increased when he is able to reclassify and/or when he is promoted (see paragraph 7), or
- (ii) be selected for stage 3 below, or
- (iii) be reverted to the reserve non-effective list and called up for embodiment at a later date, if and when a vacancy occurs. Recruits on the non-effective list will be required for a period of 2 or 3 weeks per year for refresher training during which period they will be paid at embodied rates, and an account of which they will be eligible for a bounty of Rs. 40 per year.

3. Third Stage : Advanced Service Training.—For a proportion of recruits specially selected from those above there will be a further period not exceeding six months training in higher grade trades at the Service Training School, on the satisfactory completion of which a recruit will be remustered to Group I and may again be posted to an Air Force unit for about 3 months further experience. If so posted he will receive pay according to the classification for which he qualifies at the final trade test—Aircraftsman 2nd class Rs. 55, Aircraftsman 1st class Rs. 70, Leading Aircraftsman Rs. 85 per month. At the conclusion of this period alternatives (i) and (iii) of paragraph (c) in stage 2 above are applicable, and in the case of (i) pay may similarly be increased as a result of reclassification and/or promotion.

4. The number of airmen on the Reserve of 2,000 who are likely to be retained, after training is completed, on an embodied basis for the duration of war, depends upon the number of units to be formed, and although a proportion of the trainees will not immediately be required for service in the Air Forces, it is hoped that there will be vacancies for employment for a number in a civilian capacity in operating companies or in Flying Clubs.

5. On the completion of civil training selected trainees may be allotted to any of the Group II trades shown in the list below for which they are considered suitable.

In the case of trainees who, it is considered, are not upto standard for allotment to a Group II trade they will be offered the alternative of allotment to a trade in one of the lower Groups, or of discharge.

6. It should be emphasised that the training, which will be given at the Civilian Training Centres, has been specially considered and the syllabus prepared with a view to the trainees obtaining experience which will enable the period of training to be counted towards their requisite length of time required for the grant of a civilian Ground Engineer's licence.

7. Trade Groups.—The trades are divided into the following groups according to the skill required for each :—

Group I.—Fitter I, Fitter II (A), Fitter II (E), Fitter Armourer, Instrument Maker, Metal Worker and Wireless and Electrical Mechanic.

Group II.—Armourer, Carpenter, Electrician, Flight Rigger, Flight Mechanic, Instrument Repairer, Photographer and Wireless Operator.

Group III.—Fabric Worker.

Group IV.—Clerks, Equipment Assistants.

Group V.—Aircrafthands (Service Police, Parachute packer, M. T. Drivers).

Group M.—Nursing Orderly.

8. Service rates of pay and additional pay.—(a) The substantive rates of pay per month in each rank and group are as follows :—

AIR FORCE RESERVE OF MECHANICS (AND OTHER TRADES).

1. Travelling allowances.—3rd class fares will be paid for candidates coming to interview together with a daily subsistence allowance of Annas 4.

2. Qualifications.—You must—

- (a) be between 18 and 32 years of age.
- (b) have a good English education, not lower than Matriculation standard.
- (c) have a good physique but this need not be to so high a standard as that required for pilots.

Particulars of civil training course and of Air Force training and service.

1. First Stage : Civil Training.—The training period will normally be of 12 months duration, and trainees will be accommodated in quarters wherever possible and will receive a subsistence allowance of Rs. 25 per month out of which they must pay for their food and lodging. If provided with accommodation you will be required to reside in it and a proportionate amount may be deducted from your subsistence allowance in lieu thereof. An additional monthly travelling allowance for journeys to and from the centres will be granted in some cases where residential accommodation is not available near the training centre. Upon the completion of four or six months training selection will be made from trainees considered specially suitable for service training at an Air Force technical school. The remainder will continue their training for a further six months before being considered for service training.

2. Second Stage : Service Training.—(a) On being selected for service training, the trainee will be embodied in the Air Force with effect from the date of the start of his journey to the Air Force Training School and during this period which it is expected will not exceed 6 months, he will receive pay at the rate of Rs. 30 per month subject to the following stoppages :—

	Per month.
	Rs. A. P.
Dhobi	1 8 0
Extra messing	3 0 0
Nappi (except Sikhs)	0 6 0
Sports	0 8 0

With free accommodation, bedding (consisting of one dhurree and one blanket), food, clothing, etc., in accordance with the authorised scales. Extra items of bedding such as pillows, bed sheets, mattresses, etc., to which recruits are used to in their civil life should be brought by them to the school.

(b) On the satisfactory completion of this course of service training the recruit will be remustered to Group II and may be posted to an Air Force unit for about 3 months to consolidate instruction received. If so posted he will receive pay according to the classification for which he qualifies at the final trade test—Aircraftsman 2nd class Rs. 40, Aircraftsman 1st class Rs. 55, Leading Aircraftsman Rs. 70 p. m.

(c) At the conclusion of this period—
